Meets in a Bower of Evergreens and Listens to Tales of the Growth of the Self-Driven Carriage-More Stringent Trame Rules Urged for Automobiles.

The Automobile Club of America gave its sixth and greatest dinner of all in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria last night. More than 400 "devil wagon" enthusiasts were packed in the room and they had a great time until a little after 11 o'clock, when the festivities came to a close to allow many of the members to take a special train for Florida to attend the races

The grand ballroom of the Waldorf has never been more handsomely decorated for a dinner than it was last night. Against every wall and pillar and along all of the galleries were stacked soft pine trees, big and little, which made the room seem like a clearing in a forest.

A pile of rocks and moss hid the front of the guests' table, and little trees stood on each of the forty-four smaller boards. The decorations made necessary a warning from President Dave Hennen Morris that care should be taken by smokers.

At the guests' table were seated Gen. George Moore Smith Commodera Frederick.

WELCOME FROM DAVE HENNEN MORRIS. WELCOME FROM DAVE HENNEN MOBRIS.

In his address of welcome President Morris told of the growth of the club and of the automobile's development in the last few years. In contrast to the banquet of last night be reminded the diners of the first feast of the club, which was held at the Waldorf in 1899 and at which only a handful of men who towned or intended to own.

Continuing, he said:
"I ask you to glance at our record. The first club run was held on Nov. 4, 1899;
it was barely seven miles long. Somethirtyeight machines attempted to go that journey, seven miles over good roads, yet on account of the grade on Riverside Drive

Who here has forgotten our first speed and endurance test. gotten our first speed and endurance test, the Blanchet eup, that thrilling contest on Long Island, where the winner drove his automobile fifty miles in 2 hours, 3 minutes and 30 seconds, at the terrific rate of almost twenty-five miles an hour. And how about that century to Philadelphia in June, 1900, where two cars actually reached their destination within twelve bours of starting, averaging better than eight miles an hour.

GROWTH OF THE AUTO INDUSTRY. "How great has been the change in only a few years. Gentlemen, I beg you will not forget that only five years ago the automobile movement in this country was started, and that there were only fifty cars in America. Note what progress we have made; from seven-mile runs we now go a thousand, to Boston or Buffalo or St. Louis, over the worst road in the world; the American road, and the way is not strewn with wrecks, but with broken records, and 95 per cent. of the cars arrive on schedule time. schedule time

"Now glance at our club itself. Our membership limit has been twice reached, and now the waiting list is long—a list comprising some of the greatest names in America. Look at our membership, the most democratic of any in this country—beside the millionairs is the artisan the colv the millionaire is the artisan, the only qualification being that of gentleman in its best sense. Within the fortnight we have voted to build a half million dollar club house and garage, where we may accommodate the thousand members we soon shall have on our rolls, and through which we can curb and control the professional chauffeur."

Winthrop E. Scarritt, former president of the club, had a little fun with his fellow member, James B. Dill, and then devoted himself, as did Mr. Morris, to pointing out what a great thing the automobile is, in spite of all that has been said against it. In part he said:

SONS OF ST. LAWRENCE DINE. Herbert F. Gunnisen Guest of Honor of the Up-State Folk.

One could hear in imagination the wind whistling across the bleak hillsides and see the drifts pile high when the members of the St. Lawrence Club of New York city gathered last night for their fifteenth annual dinner at the Hotel Astor.

The dinner was given in honor of Herbert F. Gunnison of the Brooklyn Eagle and through him in honor of St. Lawrence University and St. Lawrence county. Before the dinner was over Timothy L. Woodruff dropped in to smile a moment and deliver a eulogy on the superior merits of the men of the north. He was greeted with a rousing college yell.

A. Barton Hepburn, as toastmaster, said that almost all the great men of the city come from the country and are gradu-

Mr. Gunnison told how hard he had labored to e-cape the honors of the evening. "My efforts," he said, "remind me of a conversation between a Lord Chief Justice and a Bishop.
"Said the latter: 'Our work is very similar. You say to a man: "You be damned, you be hanged." I say to a man, you be hanged—you be damned."

At the guests' table were seated Gen.
George Moore Smith, Commodore Frederick
G. Bourne, Thomas A. Edison, James B.

Don C. Seitz of the World declared that the praise of St. Lawrence county had been wasted, since there were very few true northern New York men present. "But," he added, "all who have any claim are like the Irishman who said 'ivery man loves his native land whether he was born there or not.' St. Lawrence men," he continued, "win out through their loyalty."

President Gunnison of St. Lawrence University announced a gift of $50,000 from Andrew Carnegie. William H. Maxwell and Chester S. Lord also ran.

President Roosevelt and Vice-President Fairbanks Trace Their Descent From It. The fourth annual dinner of the Columbia County Association was held last night at the Hotel Savoy. Gen. Stewart L. Woodford spoke of the increase of trade with the Orient that would follow the opening of the Panama Canal. President Roose velt sont a letter of regret. He wrote that his father's grandmother had been a resident of Columbia county, and he was unanimously elected an honorary member of the organization. Vice-President-elect Fairbanks also claimed ancestry in Columbia county and was similarly honored. Among the speakers were Dr. Flavel S. Luther, president of Trinity College, and the Rev. D. Parker Morgan of the Church of the Heavenly Rast.

Entertainment was contributed by several well known vaudeville people and Alexander, the Indian magician.

RUSSIAN SYMPHONY SOCIETY. Wassill Safonoff Appears as a Performer on the Celeste.

The third concert of the Russian Symphony Society took place last night at Carnegie Hall. What seemed to be the feature of interest to the major part of the audience was the appearance of Wassi.i S fonoff. the conductor from Moscow, who is here "It was the lamented Garfield who said that the Pilgrim fathers were opposed to hanging only when they were the people to be hung. The average American, with good red blood in his veins, is opposed to the automobile, only until he gets one himself, and then he becomes an enthusiastic advecate of this sport for kings and king of sports.

"Notwithstanding this great and solemn fact, a late Governor of the mosquito State, with more audacity than wisdom, recommended in a recent message that no automobile be parmitted in the State of New Jersey that could run over twenty miles per hour. And yet this distinguished gentleman, who loves a horse, would swell with more of the lamented concerts, as a performer on the celeste. This is an adaptation of the keyboard to the bell harmonica and it has the advantage over the customary two little hammers of allowing greater freedom of performance, more variety of touch and the playing of chords.

The instrument was heard for the first time in this country last night and in a little number—"Danse de la fée Dragée" from Tschaikowsky's "Nut Cracker" suite. Neither the composition nor the instrument seemed deeply important. Mr. Safonoff played it with much gusto.

Winiam P. Eno spoke at some length on "Street Traffic Regulation," outlining the work started by Deputy Police Commissioner Piper and developed by Commissioner McAdoo. He said that the ordinances and the Penal Code make possible punishment for infractionof the regulations only in some cases and declared that to make the system of enforcement complete the Penal Code should provide that any infraction should constitute a misdemeanor."

Lieut.-Gov. M. Linn Bruce was accused by the diners of playing to the gailer ies, where many women sat. He got more applause from that quarter than any of the other speakers when, raising his glass, he proposed this toast:

"To the ladies, the only autocrats who elect without voting, who govern without law and who decide without appeal."

Mr. Bruce admitted that he didn't own an automobile and that he had never ridden in one more than two or three times in the Afternoon and "Lucla" in the Evening.

There was a large audience at the Metropolitan Opera House yesterday when Ponthielli's "La Gioconda" was sung. Mme. COUPLE FOUND DEAD IN BED.

SADIE BARTH AND WILLIAM MADDEN SUFFOCATED BY GAS.

Had Engaged a Room in the Flushing Hotel in Flushing at 10:30 o'Clock. on Friday Night-The Coroner Convinced That Death Was Accidental.

William Madden, 30 years of age, of Twelfth street, College Point, and Miss Sadie Barth, 26 years old, formerly of 1610 First avenue, this city, were found dead in a bed in the Flushing Hotel, in Flushing, yesterday afternoon. Their deaths had been caused by gas, which was pouring from several unlighted jets in a gas range in the room. They had been dead several hours.

They came to the hotel at 10:30 Friday night and Madden registered as John Grawumbof of Brooklyn. They were assigned to a room and that was the last seen of them alive. Yesterday afternoon entertained Mayor McClellan last night about 3 o'clock the proprietor detected a strong odor of gas and traced it to the room in which the couple were. The door was broken in and the couple were found lying dead on a bed. The room was filled with gas. One gas jet in the room was lighted.

The woman was good looking and well dressed. Only $1.20 was found in the man's clothing.

Miss Barth went to College Point on Thursday to visit Miss Amanda Wagner and Mrs. Isaac Norden, daughters of Mrs. William J. Wagner of 35 Thirteenth street, highly respected residents of the place. They said that they had known Miss Barth | CAMPANIA AND SAVOIE WERE and always had believed her to be respectable. She was an orphan, they said, and they thought her home was in lower Eighth and sister, but their residence was not

On their return her friends waited up until 1 o'clock in the morning, but they never saw her alive again.

A letter found among the dead woman's effects was from Madden, and was written in a loverlike strain. It was addressed to 1610 First avenue, Manhattan, where she formerly lived with a Mrs. Jones. The police say that Miss Barth had recently moved to 2687 Eighth avenue, Manhattan.

Madden was employed at the pumping station of the water department in Flushing. He bore an excellent reputation in College Point and Flushing. His father is Patrick Madden, a boss mason. He leaves three brothers. Both Miss Wagner and Mrs. Norden knew Madden, but were not aware that he was acquainted with Miss Barth. Madden was single and lived with his parents.

The officials say there is no doubt that the pair came to their deaths accidentally.

They hold that the fact that a gas jet was long with the forces where all events are from her friends waited up until 1 o'clock in the morning, but they never a few hours before.
